Excerpt: . .were sold, and we were turned out of the farm and went to a miserable cottage rn the next village., where, as my father was so unused to work, we subsisted for a while on the reluctant charity of my uncle, whose daughters were always reproaching mewith taking thew bread from them. Believe me, Madam, I did all I could do to earn it for my father and myself: but what could hands so seeble as mine do towards supporting us both? I made an attempt to see my grandfather, and to implore his pity and protection towards one who had never offended him; but he ordered me to be driven from his door, and never again suffered to appear there: orders which those he had about him were ready enough to execute. I returned home quite disheartened indeed, but still endeavouring to the utmost of my power to procure a support by my labour for my father and myself; I even went out to work in the fields; but all I could earn was insufficient that we often wanted necessary food, at least / have often wanted it. But my father had made an acquaintance with a widow woman in the next village, who was said to be worth forty or fifty pounds. She was young too and not ugly, and in less than a year after my dear mother s death, he married her, and we removed to her house. **...
